CAMPUS CLIPPINGS

J. A. M.

Happy New Year to everybody! And may you all get through your exams! What more could we wish?

"Utz" Twardowicz, in the opinion of this columnist, is one of the cleverest basketball players ever to don a Loyola uniform. He'll be a source of worry to every team encountered.

The first five men of this year's team present an unusual combination: all of them are threats. The back court men possess keen eyes for the basket. Captain Rodgers, up to this year has played center, while Liston cavorted at forward during his rather spectacular High School career and also during part of the campaign of last year.

We understand a certain Senior has resolved with the New Year to cease gossiping. Another source of news must be looked for.

Intercepted letters to Santa:

Better late than never.
Please send diplomas, to be delivered in June.

The Seniors.

All we want is a passing mark in Physics and a successful Junior Prom with a New York Orchestra.

The Juniors.

Send us an understandable Chemistry book.

The Sophs.

We are glad we won that football game; it took so much worry off our shoulders. And, dear Santa, send us a big Freshman Class next year—we'll handle them very gently! And if you have any "60s" lying around idle, just drop them in our English stocking—we need 'em!

The Freshies.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

The fifth National Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest has been announced and all entries must be in by March 15. Loyola was well represented in this nationwide contest last year in the person of Adolph Wasilifsky, who survived the State competition and received favorable comment at the Regional setto at Bucknell.

It is hoped that the representative this year will make an equally good showing if not better.

SOPHOMORES CAPTURE INTERCLASS DEBATE

The first Inter-Society Debate of the scholastic year was held on Wednesday, January 9. The speakers were Messrs. John Kohlhepp, '31, and Anselm Sodaro, '31, of the Bellarmine Society and Messrs. Ransom Hartman, '32, and Russell Rozea, '32, of the Jenkins Society. The topic was, "Resolved: That the Kellogg Peace Pact Be Ratified by the United States Senate." Mr. Wm. C. Dunnigan presided.

The debaters' arguments were centered on the efficacy of the Treaty. Mr. Kohlhepp and Mr. Sodaro declared, for the Affirmative, that the Pact was too noble to be denied a trial, although they admitted that while it might be a strong deterrent, it would not completely abolish war. "For," they said, "public opinion will so anathematize aggressive notions that war will become quite unprofitable and therefore be abandoned."

On the other hand, Mr. Hartman and Mr. Rozea pointed out the boycott, admittedly the strongest weapon of the Pact, would be ineffectual as large nations would not suffer, though their dependents might. They contended that the United States would have to join the World Court and recognize Soviet Russia. Mr. Rozea was particularly anxious to learn how his adversaries could reconcile the Pact with the Monroe Doctrine unless they agreed that the Pact sanctioned defensive wars. And how can defensive war be readily distinguished from any other kind?

The formal speeches were delivered in a most eloquent manner and quite impressed the large and

LOYOLA STUDENTS DISTRIBUTE BASKETS ON CHRISTMAS EVE

The students of the College, who so generously contributed toward procuring those twenty baskets of provisions for the poor, deserve the most laudable of congratulations. They certainly displayed the true spirit of Christmas by managing the whole affair in a quiet, yet enthusiastic manner.

Members of all the classes were represented among the benefactors, who gathered together baskets of every shape and size, laden with a plentiful supply of nourishing food—hams, potatoes, greens, fruit, flour, bread, cakes, etc.

On Christmas Eve, the baskets were distributed among fifteen poor families in various sections of the city. It was a work which brought joy to hearts of givers as well as to the hearts and homes of recipients. The charity of these Loyola students will not soon be forgotten.

PHYSICAL CULTURE COURSE INTRODUCED AT LOYOLA

A compulsory course in physical training to be added to the curriculum was announced to the student body shortly after their return from the holidays.

Mr. Comerford, Athletic Director, will be in charge of the course and will hold classes on Mondays and Tuesdays in his "classroom" on the main floor of the college gymnasium.

The classes will consist of "setting up" exercises and callisthenics, with a basket-ball game at the end of each period.

Each class has been assigned one hour weekly with Mr. Comerford, the Seniors alone being excepted. The following schedule has been posted:

Mondays 12.40—1.35
Freshman B.S.
Freshman Pre-Legal Sophomore Pre-Medical

Mondays 2.30—3.30
Sophomore A.B.
Junior B.S.

Tuesdays 10.00—10.50
Sophomore A.B.
Sophomore B.S.
Seniors (Optional)

Tuesdays 11.00—11.50

GREEN AND GRAY PROGRESSES AS CONTRACTS ARE ACCEPTED

The staff of Loyola's "1929 Green and Gray" has chosen its printer and engraver and is now ready to proceed with the actual work of producing the publication.

The following companies have been selected, respectively, as the printer and engraver: Dulaney-Vernay, of Charles St., Baltimore, and Jahn and Ollier, of Chicago, Illinois. Both companies are highly recommended and possess excellent reputations, being specialists in their respective departments.

Mr. Blair, the Business Manager, has outlined a strenuous campaign in order to obtain the necessary money for financing the book and with the expected co-operation of the student body he should succeed without any difficulty.

ANNUAL RALLY OF CRUSADERS HELD AT CATHEDRAL

The annual rally of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade was held recently at the Cathedral. About two thousand young Crusaders attended.

Mr. R. B. Bouchelle, of Junior Class and vice-president of the unit, represented Loyola College at this rally.

GREYHOUNDS VICTORS OVER BALTIMORE U.

Winner in Doubt Until Final Minutes of Play

The Greyhounds opened their Intercollegiate basketball season with a well-earned victory over Baltimore University.

Although a little lax in their role as hosts, they flashed a brand of basketball which kept their opponents more than interested all evening.

Close Guarding

The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout, which featured brilliant and hard playing on both sides, and especially close guarding, as is evident from the low score.

There were exactly five stars for the Greyhounds, but the brightest among these was little "Utz" Twardowicz, who approached very close to the impossible by being everywhere at the same time.

Loyola Leads

Loyola was the first to score with a foul shot, but Baltimore U. quickly countered with two field goals and a foul to place them in the lead, 5 to 1. Here the Greyhound defense stiffened and started an offense of their own which terminated with "Utz" and his cohort, "Bill" Liston, knotting the score with field goals, and then slipping into the lead on the latter's free shots. This lead was never relinquished, except for a few minutes in the second half. The half ended with Loyola enjoying a scant two-point margin, 8 to 6.

B. U. Threatens

At the beginning of the second half, the St. Paul Streeters started out as if they meant to win, and jumped into the lead at 12 to 11. Shortly after this the score was tied at 13-all. At this point the Greyhounds started another onslaught on the cords, and from the time of Dudley's basket, which broke the tie,

INTERIOR WORK ON LIBRARY BUILDING UNDER WAY

The progress on the new Jenkins Library has been very marked during the last few weeks and the building seems to be nearing its completion. The four walls, of beautiful rough cut granite, have been completed and match, in color and style, the present Jenkins Science Building. The floors of reinforced concrete have been put down and partition walls are now under construction. But there is one fact which tells us clearly that the building is soon to be finished. At last the roof is on and above it floats the Stars and Stripes and a Green and Gray Loyola Pennant.

RESOLUTIONS

With the New Year we begin again. We begin to correct the mistakes of the past and find a satisfying success in ventures in which we had met only indifferent success. And this because an honest scrutiny of pursuits earnestly entered upon reveals that failure of achievement was due always to ourselves.

Whether it be of self or of business, this honest inventory should be taken not in haphazard manner, but with an earnestness that begets resolution. It is well to remember that the world does not progress nor its inhabitants prosper on deeds of other years and the accomplishments of other days, but rather on the actual fulfillment of ideas which are the fruit of healthy, active minds.

The man who is anxious to improve his business will not make countless changes but will rather stress a particular point to be improved and thus will be enabled to center his attention on a few improvements which will insure many in his business.

The same principle can be applied with profit to the business of "life." Many and varied resolutions cannot possibly receive proper attention but an honest effort to improve in one particular line of endeavor will go a long way toward strengthening character and removing one from the category of "jack of all trades and master of none."

That point in one's character which needs strengthening or that laxity in the performance of one's duty which needs "checking up" gives the proper matter for a profitable resolution.

RADIO

The night of the big fight. All is in readiness—station "tuned in"—functioning perfectly—Graham McNamee giving pre-fight statistics—everyone comfortably expectant.

Suddenly, for no good reason at all, the wife remembers that an engagement was made to "listen in" on the fight at the Joneses. Peace is deposed. Chaos holds sway.

Eventually you arrive at your destination. After mutual hyperbolic apologies, you all settle down.

"The bell for the first round rings; the boxers warily advance—" suddenly the radio emits a blood-curdling shriek.. . . "Heterodyne whistles," explains Jones. A few moments of dark silence. "The challenger uncorks a—" the broadcast sinks to the whisper of a dying man. Now it is inaudible; now it returns .. . faintly: "The bell clangs for the fourth round. The challenger seems rather groggy. Apparently his seconds—" "Damned static," growls Jones.

Let us draw the curtain of charity over a few rounds. Then—Mrs. Jones:—"Algernon, dear, can't you do something to improve reception?" Jones begins fiddling with the dials. Promptly it becomes worse than before. Again Mrs. Jones:—"Please leave the thing alone!" By this time, Jones, "all hot and bothered," feels called upon to apologize for his cantankerous set. You graciously reply that the same thing happens to your set now and then.

Everyone is ill at ease—especially the radio. "The eighth round, both fighters are milling about in the center of the ring—Wow—what a—" "Some young fool with a Christmas wireless"—this from Jones.. . . "It is now the tenth round, oh, the champ—will now sing 'Sweethearts on Parade.'" Jones:—"Confound that local station!" A long pause. Jones finally discovers the loose connection—"We will return you to our studios" .. . comes through the loud speaker clearly and smoothly, and you rise to say "good night."

"Isn't the radio wonderful? Just to think that one may sit in one's own living-room and at the same time be at the ring-side." You have your doubts.

And as you wend your way homeward, you purchase an "Extra," to read the account of the fight.

DEBATING SOCIETIES

At the last meeting of the Robert Bellarmine Debating Society, December 20, 1928, no formal discussion was held. Instead, Mr. Schlaerth, the moderator, gave a very interesting and enlightening talk on the present attempt to end war through the medium of the Kellogg Peace Pact. Mr. Schlaerth explained this noble enterprise thoroughly, and then invited the members of the Society to present their own views on the subject. Several responded, and most noteworthy among these was Mr. Anselm Sodaro, who but recently was chosen to represent the Society in the coming debate with the Freshman Society. The hour was well enjoyed by all present.

And now at this juncture it might not be amiss to say a word about the success of the Debating Society during the first semester. Timely topics have been discussed and ably discussed. Members who have seemed tongue-tied before have become enthusiastic debaters. The classes have been quite well attended and enjoyed, and broader viewpoints and more explicit knowledge of the burning questions of the day have been the reward of the members of the Society. The victory of the Sophomores over their younger brothers in the recent interclass debate brought the first semester work of the Robert Bellarmine Debating Society to a happy close.

Jesuit Mission Magazine Begins Third Year

The Mission Magazine, Jesuit Missions, the official publication of the three hundred North American Jesuit Missionaries began its third volume with the January number. The newly designed cover and special feature articles marked the anniversary. "Mission Years In Retrospect" by Joseph P. Merrick, S.J. gives a splendid resume of the work so far accomplished by the American Jesuits. "A Leper Needs Christ At Christmas" is an unusual story of a leper colony at Culion.

Jesuit Missions should appeal especially to the old and new students of Loyola. Rev. Andrew Hoffman S.J., Mr. Charles Rohleder, S.J., and Mr. John Coniff, S.J., former Loyola students are now in the Philippines. Rev. Thomas Murray, S.J., former teacher at Loyola College is stationed in Zamboanga, Mindanao, P. I. What they are doing for the Faith is regularly told in the pages of the magazine.

The magazine is surely deserving of a much larger number of Loyola College subscribers than it has enjoyed up to the present.

The Faculty and the Student Body extend their heartfelt sympathy to Richard McGrann, on the sudden death of his father and to William Ruzicka, on the demise of his mother.

ALUMNI NOTES

Executive Meeting Postponed

The unavoidable absence from the city of several members of the Executive Committee has caused the postponement of their regular meeting.

However this meeting will be held in the near future to make immediate preparations for the annual election of officers for the Alumni Association.

Business has again called Mr. Lerch to Florida, but he expects to be on hand for the coming meetings of the Association.

"Ken" Graham at Woodstock

Mr. Kenneth Graham '22, who taught at Loyola High School for several years, is now studying philosophy at Woodstock.

Ray Spellissy Again

Mr. John R. Spellissy, continues to display the same zealous activity, which marked him at college as a willing worker and able leader. Though teaching at the High School, he finds time enough from his daily occupation to aid in the reorganization of the Young Men's Club of St. Martin's Parish, and to coach the basket-ball team of the same Club.

Alumni Team Sparkles

It was astonishing and also consoling to watch those "old grads" handle the basket-ball against the varsity. Helfrich, Lacy, Cummings, Menton, Lyons, and O'Connor—what memories those names are capable of arousing! For eight years these members of the Alumni composed one of the most skillful and popular teams in the city of Baltimore.

U. of B. Game Well Attended

The attendance and enthusiasm of the Alumni at the University of Baltimore game were very gratifying to all concerned. It is hoped that larger gatherings of the "old fellows" will be found as the season progresses; for the Varsity hopes to win many games, but to do so they need our support.

Fr. Strohaver Returns to H. C.

Father George Strohaver, S.J., after several months' stay at Evergreen recuperating, has returned to Worcester to continue his work as head of the Chemistry Department at Holy Cross College.

The Faculty and Student Body join with the Alumni in offering their sympathy to Joseph Danaher, of the class of '28, whose father died after an illness of several weeks.

BASKETBALL

CLASS BASKETBALL LEAGUE FORMED

There should be reason for much rejoicing on the part of those who "Only stand and wait" in the cheering section and watch their classmates steal away with all the glory, for the formation of an Interclass Basketball League has been announced.

There are, no doubt, many potential stars in the college who need only an incentive, such as the league offers, to bring to light their hidden ability. Remembering that stars are made and not born, the league should fulfill a necessity of long standing by seasoning and giving experience to those who are expected to form the backbone of the varsity teams in future years.

In conjunction with the Physical Training classes, a part of each period will be given over to practice for the class teams, so that the caliber of basketball in the league should be much better than in previous years. And, of course, as in former years, all men on the varsity squad will be ineligible for the Interclass League.

This league will get under way in the latter part of the month. To make it a success, the whole-hearted support and co-operation of the student body is necessary. Therefore, the Class Presidents are urged to promulgate this activity and to place a representative team on the court.

The rules and schedule for the league have not, as yet, been definitely fixed, but will be posted in the near future.

GREYHOUNDS VICTORS OVER BALTIMORE U.

Continued from page 1, column 4 the outcome of the game was assured. Just before the final whistle, in order to leave no room for doubt, "Utz" caged another basket, making the final score 19 to 14.

In the preliminary game the Junior Varsity set a good example by defeating the Baltimore U. Freshmen in a hard-fought game which required a five-minute extra period to decide the winner. The final score was 22 to 20.

ALUMNI DROPS CLOSE GAME TO VARSITY

The inclement weather was no doubt the cause of such a small crowd that witnessed the inaugural game of the basketball season.

The Greyhounds found themselves pitted against an Alumni team composed of players, who during their high school and college days had been considered little short of sensational. The team of Lacy, Helfrich, Cummings, Menton and Lyons, with Bob O'Connor as relief man, brought back memories of other days when the "Red Sweatered" Scheurholz packed halls, and sensational games were the regular Saturday night dish for the basketball fans of Baltimore.

Time and time again the ghost of this formerly great club would flit across the court as the "old timers" rushed down the floor to score from a difficult angle, but the Varsity were able to match the spurts of the "grads" and held their own throughout the first half. With five seconds to go in the first half and with the score standing 15-14 in favor of the College, Menton sank a long one from well beyond the center of the floor to put the Alumni one point in the lead as the half ended.

The "old timers" drew first blood in the third quarter with a long toss by Helfrich. The Greyhounds then settled down to business and with the diminutive "Utz" Twardowicz bringing the ball down court and shooting in his sizzling, puzzling passes, it wasn't long before Liston and Dudley were leading the march to victory. As the final score of 28-24 indicates the Alumni were hard on the heels of the fast traveling Varsity Unit when the timer's whistle declared the first victory for the 1929 Greyhounds.

FATHER AYD ADDRESSES KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

On December 19, Father Ayd lectured to the members of the Santa Maria Council of the Knights of Columbus at the Santa Maria Council Hall, taking as his subject "Executions in the Maryland Penitentiary." Father Ayd, in keeping with the spirit of Christmastide, lightened a very serious subject by relating some of the many humorous incidents which occur even behind prison bars.

Among the many questions of moment discussed by the lecturer was that of the necessity of the serious sanction of capital punishment. That this sanction is not a perfect one is readily admitted by all. "That it should be abolished because it is not a perfect deterrent would lead one to logically conclude," argued Father Ayd, "that, for the same reason, God's own awful sanction, hell, be done away with; for, despite the awful sentence of eternal condemnation inevitably awaiting him, the unrepentent crime-hardened sinner continues along the 'path of corruption'."

Father Ayd's lecture was graciously and gratefully received by the K. of C. members.

We notice the Stars and Stripes and a Loyola pennant on the pinnacle of the Library Building. The GREYHOUND is getting excited about moving into its new kennel.

attentive audience. But real rumblings of thunder and flashes of lightning came forth during the rebuttal.

"You ask for a test," thundered Mr. Hartman, "What of your Naval Disarmament and your Eighteenth Amendment? Have they not been tested?"

Mr. Kohlhepp countered in Websterian tones, "Is a law wrong because it is violated?"

Then Mr. Rozea claimed that the Pact had only moral sanction, and as such was "but a futile gesture"

Mr. Sodaro concluded by proving that the Monroe Doctrine and the Kellogg Pact, inasmuch as both sanctioned defensive war, did not conflict. And so the sparks faded away.

The decision of the Reverend Judges, Fathers Geoghan and Ceruti and Mr. Schlaerth, was announced in favor of the Affirmative side by a 2-1 vote. The Sophomores had won the day!

Father Geoghan later commended the poise and dignity of the debaters and contrasted the fiery enthusiasm of the Frosh with the calm logic of the Sophs, and professed that the debate, as a whole, was most pleasing.

F. Joseph Manns, '24, Ordained at Rome

On December 22, 1928, Reverend F. Joseph Manns was ordained to the Holy Priesthood in the Eternal City. Father Manns is a graduate of the class of '24. For two years following his graduation from Loyola, Father Manns studied at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore. From there he was sent to Rome where he finished his theological studies at the American College.
